FROM THE DIRECTOR
COMMUNICATION + CONSISTENT BRANDING = ENGAGEMENT

Branding is the foundation to establishing our identity with the alumni of Auburn University. By consistently and professionally using our interlocking AU brand and the name of the Auburn Alumni Association, we help members of the Auburn family immediately know and trust the programs, messages and products to which it is attached.

The keys there are “consistency” and “professionalism.” We want all of our communications to be associated with those characteristics, and an important part of that is always keeping those words in mind as we use our Auburn Alumni Association mark and plan the materials that go with it.

We are ambassadors from Auburn University to its graduates, and we should always remember that beyond our iconic brand is the Auburn family that makes it so strong. By using the guidelines in this document, you will help the Auburn Alumni Association communicate and engage—consistently and professionally—with our constituents both on and off campus and within our own organization.

Gretchen VanValkenburg ’86
Vice President for Alumni Affairs &
Executive Director, Auburn Alumni Association

WHAT THE AUBURN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION IS ALL ABOUT

Mission
The Auburn Alumni Association is dedicated to enhancing the engagement and connection of all Auburn University alumni and friends.

Vision
To advance Auburn University by engaging our global community and cultivating their passion for and loyalty to the university.

GOALS

1. Increase connectivity between alumni and the university

2. Increase meaningful alumni engagement

3. Reach all Auburn alumni family and friends

4. Establish mutually beneficial partnerships with alumni stakeholders

5. Ensure the Association remains fiscally sound and well poised for the future
BRAND ARCHITECTURE

What is a brand?
A brand is the sum of the perception of everything that the organization does, from the logo to the quality of its programs and communications.

What is brand architecture?
Brand architecture refers to how branding within an organization works together to present a clear, consistent and professional message.

How does the Auburn Alumni Association brand work in conjunction with the rest of Auburn University?
The association does this in two ways. First, our brand complements the exiting branding guidelines for Auburn University, which can be found at www.auburn.edu/styleguide.

Second, the association co-brands by using the interlocking AU logo, or design, in conjunction with the designs of other university entities—all under the umbrella of the university branding guidelines.

What is the goal of having a set of branding guidelines?
To ensure Auburn Alumni Association communications are instantly recognized and infallibly associated with quality, professionalism and value by constituents and partners both inside and outside Auburn University.
The Auburn Alumni Association logo is co-branded with Auburn University by using the interlocking AU. Therefore, all Auburn Alumni Association logos must include the interlocking AU with approved logo type, or the interlocking AU design must be included with other approved event and social branding. The design has five color variations to be used as shown on page nine. Instructions for club logos can be found in the next section.

For Auburn University guidelines: www.auburn.edu/styleguide
All chartered clubs and affiliates are required to use the interlocking AU and text (such as the example to the right) on all social media, promotional items, websites, etc. If another design is desired it must be approved by Auburn University’s Trademark and Licensing office and must always be used with the interlocking AU provided by the Auburn Alumni Association. See previous page for how to use the logo.

*CMYK, hex numbers and Pantones are all for vendor use. RGB numbers are used for web.
Interstate is used for headers and copy that needs to be read from afar such as billboards, transit ads, etc. Miller is used for body copy or more formal communications to the public. The association also uses Voltage sparingly as an accent.

Internal documents should use Calibri pt 11

Auburn Alumni Association communications adhere to Associated Press Style, which governs such details as how dates, addresses and titles are used. If in doubt, check with the editors in the communications department, who supplement their own knowledge with a subscription to the AP Stylebook online.

Photography should always reflect the Auburn Spirit—warm, open, friendly and inviting. In order to achieve these results, here are a few things to remember:

- Have your subjects appear approachable by avoiding closed body language (such as arms crossed over the chest), having the subject looking at the camera, engaging with the photographer, leaving space around the subject to show some background rather than making the subject look closed-in, and having the subject wear regular work clothes.

- Photograph subjects in three locations or setups to allow for a lead photo and provide flexibility and greater choice. At least one setting should be action-oriented, with the subject working on or doing something in their field.

- Use off-camera lighting, typically using a 3:1 ratio to appear natural. Similar lighting should be used throughout a shoot unless intentionally changing for dramatic effect.

- After the shoot, use realistic retouching and color-correction on images.

Note: Photography should never contain conflicting brands.

BODDA GETTA SOCIAL

Auburn Alumni Association uses the social ambassador program Bodda Getta Social to allow our alumni and friends to help amplify Auburn University’s digital voice all while winning prizes. All contests and prize initiatives run on social media should utilize this platform.

HOW TO TALK TO US

HOW WE RESPOND

1. Keep the message positive

2. Non personal opinion - you are a representative of Auburn and should align with the university at all times.

3. Unfortunately times of crisis do happen. The association will align with the messaging of the president’s office. You should look for this messaging and help reiterate our president’s message.

4. The association does not respond to individuals who post or respond to inappropriate behavior or vulgarity.
“Engagement” and “inclusion” were the dominant words that came out as the Auburn Alumni Association Board of Directors engaged in a thorough self-study and extensive focus-group testing over the past three years. In December 2017, the association rolled out a four-tier membership plan that incorporates the annual and life memberships enjoyed by our members in the past with a new tier that awards association membership to all graduates of Auburn University. The fourth tier recognizes life members who continue to support the association financially.

EVERYONE BELONGS

Tier 1

“General Member”—All graduates of Auburn University.

Tier 2

“Annual Member”—Alumni and friends who contribute to the Auburn Alumni Association each year.

Tier 3

“Life Member”—Alumni and friends who have met the required contribution for Life Membership.

Tier 4

“Life Sustaining Member”—A Life Member who continues to contribute to the Auburn Alumni Association Scholarship Endowment after completing Life Membership contribution.
